French Canadians Attempt to Vent Their Dislike in a New Form.

Three Law Students Arrested While About to Blow Up the Admiral Nelson Monument at Montreal.

MONTREAL, Quebec, Nov. 20 .- Shortly after 3 o'clock this morning, three French Canadian law students, Honore Mercier, son of the ex-Premier of Quebec, Paul De Martigny and Alphonse Pellard were arrested while trying to blow up the historic monument to England's great naval hero, Admiral Nelson, which stands at the top of Jacques Cartier square, at the entrance of the City Hall. The police had received private information a few hours before that a plot was on foot to blow up the monument with dynamite and secreted themselves in the neighborhood to await the arrival of the trio of conspirators. The young men affected seized, when of them loudly declaring that "the thing had no right there, anyway, and should be made mincemeat of." They were taken to the Central Station and locked up, after giving their names, as already mentioned. On the person of Paul De Martigny was found a dynamite cartridge nearly a foot long and about thirty feet of fuse. To-day the prisoners were brought up before Judge Des Noyers, in his private office, and when they were charged with the crime they entered a formal plea of not guilty. There is no section of the criminal code dealing specifically with an attempt to blow up a monument, but Judge Des Noyers states that the one headed "attempts to destroy property" will cover their case. The three young men vary in age from eighteen to twenty, and belong to good families. They are all law students. Young De Martigny is the son of Dr. A. L. De Martigny, young Pelland the brother of Mr. J. O. Pelland, advocate, and young Mercier is the son of the ex-Premier, who is out of town at present. The accused were admitted to bail in securities for a large amount, their friends being willing to put up any quantity of money to have them liberated. Their trial was postponed until the 28th Inst.

There is little doubt the young men were incited to attempt the outrage by the flerce articles which have been published in French papers here during the past few months against the monument. Their innate hatred of everything British was fired and they determined that the statue of the hero of Trafalgar should bite the dust. There is a great deal of suppressed excitement throughout the city this evening, and while the French papers make light of the affair. there is plenty of bad blood on both sides. which needs but a spark to rekindle the racial flames which it was hoped had died out some time ago.

Judge Des Novers, in an interview, said: "I believe this act is the result of the newspaper polemics over the removal of the Nolson monument. It has had the effect of inducing these young men to foolishly attempt to remove the monument by dynamite. I em certain that the French Canadian population will condemn this act, though I am satisfied that the majority of them would like to see it removed. They think there is no sense in having such a monument on a square which bears the name of Jacques Cartiers Square.

that overtures were made to Chairman Wilkins, of the Lehigh Valley railroad, to-day by alleged detectives, who offered to burn bridges and blow up roundhouses. They were ordered out of the Bingham House, in which the committee has its headquarters. Howard B. Johnson, accompanied by another whom he introduced as Mr. Atkinson, called on Grand Senior Chief of Conductors Williamson, who is also chairman of the general grievance committee, at the hotel this afternoon and asked for a private interview with him. This was not granted. The visitors were then ushered into Room 238, in which were seated committeemen Thurston, Hannahan, Winkinson, David, Gossline, Wilkins, stenographer Smith and Thomas Allen, a reporter. Both the latter withdrew when the visitors stated that their business was of a very private nature, but the stenographer posted himself at the door and took full notes of every word that passed between the men inside. His notes were in accordance with the following statement made by John J. Hannahan, senior grand master of the Brotherhood of Loco-

When he saw it was pretty well occupied by the committee, he wished to withdraw, and asked for a private conversation with Wilkins. He was told that he might speak openly, as all the men present were identified with the work in hand. He then called for a man who was waiting in the hall, whom he introduced as Mr. Atkinson. I had previously explained to the rest of the committee that a man calling himself Howard B. Johns had told me on Saturday that he was willing to assist the strikers in his capacity as a detective, and left his card for Mr. Wilkins. Upon entering the room the man explained that both Mr. Sweigard and Mr. Voorhees had 'turned him down,' and he now wanted to get even. His own words were: 'We will do anything the committee may ask, from destroying a bridge to blowing up round-houses. The men were then ordered from the room, after being told that they were going to continue this fight according to lawful means. As he left the door he called out that he would meet us

Thomas Allen said he recognized Johns as the man who appeared as a witness in a bribery case here two weeks ago, and under oath stated that he was a detective in the employe of one of the large agencies of the country. Mr. Wilkins would not discuss the case further than to say that Johns was only carrying out the programme his employers had laid down for him to follow, and that if the committee had agreed to accept the proposition all hands would now have been under arrest.

AT BUFFALO.

Many of the Men, Including the Switchmen, Have Not Struck.

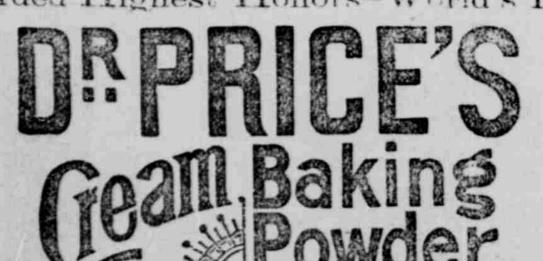

BUFFALO, Nov. 20.-Eight yard engines were working in the Lehigh Valley yards at Williams street, East Buffalo, at 2:30 this afternoon. This was an increase of five since morning. It was not expected that the company would be able to operate so many yard engines to-day, but enough of the old men signified their willingness to run them, so they were started. This caused about two-thirds of the full complement for yard work to be in operation, and the cleaning up of the yards is going ahead in good shape. Traveling Superintendent of Engines Edward Mooney said to a reporter to-day that not a single engine was abandoned on the line of the road. Only one was cut off from a train, and that, he thought, was due to a misunderstanding. The rest of the engines at this end of the division are in the yard and roundhouse. All told, there are about fifty engines in the East Buffalo vard. Not one of them is "dead." Mr. Mooney has kept steam up in all of them, and said that he could man each with an engineer in the morning if the old men de-

.Trainmaster Van Allen said: "We are moving no freight on the main line east of here, but our passenger trains are running on time. There are not over twenty-five cars of merchandise in our yards at present, so we are not crowded. For that reason we are not attempting to run freight east to-day. "How about the old men? Have they really struck?" he was asked. "Now, that's a funny thing," replied the Trainmaster. "They asked to be excused on account of sickness and for other reasons, and some of them cannot be found at the places where they board or live. In talking with the men before they went

Powderly and Hayes Again Lash Each Other with Their Tongues. FHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.-The General Assembly of the Knights of Labor held another stormy session to-day, and the lie passed more than once between the administration and anti-administration delegates. General Master Workman Powderly accused James A. Wright of giving away the secrets of the order. He declared that Wright had furnished the information for the reports printed in a morning paper. Wright denied the accusation vig-

The delegates looked anxiously this morning for the report of the finance committee which was promised to-day, but it was not yet ready. It is stated that the committee is divided on the report, three of the members desiring to vindicate Powderly and two opposing this and threatening to suppress the minority report. The report is delayed in order that the difference may be adjusted if possible. The committe has gone carefully over the books and accounts of General Secretary-treasurer Hayes, with special reference to the charges of misanpropriation of funds, and has beside heard verbal evidence from the accused in explanation of certain points upon which information was desired. A resolution requesting the resignation of all the general officers was presented to-day. It was promptly referred to the committee on resolutions, although the delegate presenting it asked for immediate action. Powderly however, would not have it that way, and it was referred. The afternoon proceedings were enlivened by another tilt between Messrs Powderly and Hayes. So aerimonious did this become that the convention finally got tired of it, and upon motion it was agreed that an hour's time should be assigned to each of the principals, during which they were to say all they had to say upon the much vexed subject of the alleged misappropriation of the funds of the order. Mr. Haves in the course of his speech, declared that ; secret order existed within the ranks of the Knights of Labor, the purpose of which was to perpetuate in office the present members of the executive board, and especially those against whom he had made accusations. He reiterated in the strongest terms his former statement that the funds of the order had been misapplied. Mr. Powderly denied the existence of any such cabal as that mentioned by Mr. Hayes. In the course of his remarks, however, he created a sensation by practically admitting that the Homestead fund and the Coeur D'Alene fund had not been expended in the purpose for which they were in-tended. He vigorously denied, however, that there was anything woong in the course pursued by the executive blard in this matter. Every dollar, he said, had been expended for the benefit of the order, and the only reason it had been diverted from its original purpose was because the money was not needed at Homestead or Coeur D'Alene.

The speeches created a tremendous sen-sation, and to-night they are being vigor-busly discussed. The General Assembly will take up the whole question to-morrow, and it is thought they will dispose of it.

And Wedded at a Columbus Hotel-Suit Against Hon. C. J. Kern Dismissed-Good Story from Peru.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. COLUMBUS, Ind., Nov. 20 .- The early train from the south brought to this city this morning William T. Owens, deputy recorder of Jackson county, and Miss Mary E. Stillwell, daughter of a well-to-do farmer. The two at once procured a license and were quietly married at the Commercial Hotel. To a few who witnessed the ceremony the parties said that their parents objected to their union, and that it was their intention to return to their homes and surprise their friends later on by announcing their marriage. The groom said he was a candidate for recorder of Jackson county, and he asked some in the room at the time of the marriage if they did not think that it would be real nice to get elected recorder of Jackson county and then make known their marriage. The two were real happy over their day's adventure, and seemed to think that others should be also. They left on the first train VALPARAISO, Ind., Nov. 20 .- At the February term of the Circuit Court the grand jury summoned the cashiers of the banks to appear before them with the books containing the names of depositors. This they refused to do, and Cashier G. F. Bartholomew, of the Farmers' National Bank, was fined $50 for contempt of court. On affidavit of the grand jury the State has now filed suit for damages in the sum of $20,000 against Hon. C. J. Kern, ex-member of the Legislature, charging in the complaint that for several years past he had failed to give a truthful statement of his property for taxation, charging that he had $10,000 in the city banks which he would withdraw during the time the assessor was making the rounds; also charging that he would deposit the money with J. H. Walker & Co. and other Chicago houses. The case dragged through two terms of court, and to-day it was discovered that the case had been dismissed. It is claimed by Kern's friends that it was a political move, and the facts bear out the assertion.

Children Separated in Infancy Will Soon Be United.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. PERU, Ind., Nov. 20 .- A pathetic letter was received by postmaster Stevens, of this city, a few days ago from Miss Daisy Myers, of 1012 East First street, at Madison, asking that he assist her in finding a brother whom she had never seen, and of whom she knew nothing until a few weeks ago. When she was six weeks old and her brother seven years they were brought to Indiana from Cincinnati and adopted in different families. Her brother's name was Geo. Harrison, and she learned he lived here, but could never reach him by letter. Her appeal was published in a local paper and on seeing it County Treasurer Zimmerman forwarded the following to Miss Myers: "About fifteen years ago two orphan brothers by the name of Harrison, the eldest one named George, were brought to Amboy, this county, from Ohio for the purpose of finding homes for them. George was readily taken by a Quaker named Edwin Lamb. A home could not be found for the other boy and he was taken back to Ohio. George was kept as one of the family and was trained to be an industrious and upright man. Several years ago he fell in love with a pretty young maiden in the neighborhood of Amboy and a short time ago they were married and moved to Wabash county, where they are now living."

ARREARS OF PENSIONS. G. A. R. Post 222 and Other Citizens

Ask Their Restoration. At a meeting of G. A. R. Post No. 222. held at Freedom, Ind., the following reso-

RICHMOND, Ind., Nov. 20 .- The man calling himself J. W. Fuller, who was arrested here last week for attempting to beat the Second National Bank, was arraigned in the Mayor's court this morning on the charge of forgery and held to the higher court. Evidence against Fuller continues to accumulate. Yesterday Lewis Ryan, teller of the Louisville Third National Bank, was here, and says Fuller is the same man who worked the Louisville bank for $200 Sept. 29, under the name of C. H. Hardwick. As "Fuller" he worked a bank at Columbia, Pa., for $200.

A circular sent out by the American Bank ing Association last May 16, describes the man in such a manner as to leave no doubt as to his identity. This circular states that the man has worked the towns of Free-bold, Bordentown, Paterson, Somerville, Salem, Elizabeth and Camden, in New Jersey; Sandy Hook, Bay Shore and Hudson, N. Y.; Wilmington, Del.; Haver de Grace, Md.; Westchester, Pa., and various points in West Virginia. He is also wanted at Bay Shore, Mich.

Democratic Sheriff in Hot Water.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. HUNTINGTON, Ind., Nov. 20 .- The Democracy of Huntington county are having a big-sized row. Sheriff Wintrode has incurred the enmity of the bosses and a petition was filed with the commissioners to have his treatment of the prisoners investigated. The investigation was held Saturday, but the sheriff refused to take any part in it, simply filing a protest against the jurisdiction of the board and notifying its members that he would hold them responsible for any injury their investigation might be to his name and character. The board heard some thirty or forty witnesses, many of them ex-prisoners, and rendered a verdict requesting the grand jury to investigate the charges, "more especially as to the bill of fare' supplied to the inmates of the jail. The sheriff claims he is being persecuted out of malice.

Brutally Whipped an Orphan.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. GAS CITY, Ind., Nov. 20. - When the United States Glass Company prepared to go to work this season it brought from Chicago twenty-five orphan boys for service in the factory. When the strike came on the boys were left with nothing to do, and they have been a menace to the community A few nights ago the manager of the boarding house operated by the glass company had occasion to punish one of the boys, and he beat him with a rawhide in a terrible manner. His back and sides are a mass of bruises and his face cut by the rawhide The citizens have taken up the case, and to-day Andy McGaell, who did the beating, was arrested and fined, the costs amount ing to some $70. The boy disappeared before the case came to trial, and it is said he was sent to Chicago to avoid being brought into court.

Evolution of Trades Unions. Buffalo Express.

A big clothing store decided that, as an advertisement, it would give away donkeys to its youthful patrons, the boy or girl who guessed the nearest to the donkey's weight getting the animal. Accordingly a donkey was put on exhibition in one of the show windows. It was not thought safe to leave him there alone, so one of the crowd of small boys who clamored for the privilege was allowed to sit in the window with him to watch him. The fortunate lad was the envy of all his companions, and his joy was complete when the clothers told him that he should be furnished with meals from a restaurant at their expense. For two or three days the boy was in love with his work. Then its monotony began to develop, and he absented himself one day to attend a Sunday school picnic, a substitute watcher being easily found. On his return, the next day, the original donkey minder was full of complaints of the unsatisfactory and unworkmanlike way in which the substitute had performed his duties. He took no pains to conceal his belief that experience as well as native ability were needed to make a successful donkey minder. Being really a faithful boy, and the donkey scheme proving a good advertisement, the firm presently allowed him a small salary. The donkey idea was taken up by other clothing stores, and lads who had acted as substitutes for the first boy, who was now recognized as the head of his profession, were drafted into the service. Those boys, who had studied, so to speak under the first master of their profession soon got to regard themselves as an espe cially privileged class, into whose hands had been committed the cult of donkey

One day a new clothing firm came to town and brought a stock of donkeys. The son of one of the proprietors was set to watch them in the store windows. The news spread, and fired the old-established donkey minders with indignation. They denounced the new comer as a scab, and declared that only the old original donkey minders should be recognized as such by any true friend of organized labor. The first boy was made walking delegate. Other trades unions were induced to enter into a boycott against the new clothing store, and one of the political parties put a plank in its platform denouncing scabism

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 18, 1893. We take pleasure in announcing the early appearance of Dr. John Henry Barrows's great work, "The Parliament of Religions," which will be the only authorized, authentic and accurate edition presented to the pub lic. The original papers read at the Parliament are in the possession of Dr. Barrows, by virtue of an order obtained from the Board of Control of the Columbian Exposition, of which the World's Congress Auxiliary, under whose auspices the partiament was held, was a part. This order has been indorsed by President Bonney, and no other publisher will, therefore, have access to the original manuscripts. In view of these facilities for securing accuracy and the official character of the work. is eminently desirable that those who wish a faithful account of the great event should take no other than that which bears Dr. Barrows's name as editor. The magnitude of the work may be realized when the editors are finding difficulty in putting into two volumes of eight hundred pages each, what other publishers are condensing from newspaper reports into one volume To insure the right edition, insist that must have two volumes of eight hundred pages each, and shall be edited by the Rev.
